This building, fourth from the corner, is 3 1/2 stories high and 2 bays wide, stone based and common running bond brick above. The building is topped by a metal cornice and flat roof.

The entrance is rectangular with transom, vestibule and inner door reached by a flight of five steps. The first floor windows are rectangular with seven over two panes and stone lintels and sills.

Over the third level windows is a rectangle elaborately carved with carv ed decorative flowers on either side.

The two second story windows are set in segmental arches. The windows are double hung with nine-over-one lights. A circle is inscribed over the central light. Windows above this story are grouped within two pairs of flat pilasters (one short pair atop a longer pair) which support a small pediment at roof level in the center bay. Third story windows are double hung with seven-over-one lights. They are set in roundel-decorated flat arches. A swag appears in the frieze space above these windows. Double casement windows (one light in each window), a pair of them, occupy the half story at the top of the building.
